HOSPITALS AND PHYSICIANS AVAILABLE TO EMPLOYEES OF UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT INJURED IN THE PERFORMANCE OF DUTY.

IMPORTANT.

The sources from which an injured employee may obtain treatment for his injury under the provisions of the employees' compensation act at the expense of the Government are given in section 9 of the act, reading as follows:

That immediately after an injury sustained by an employee while in the performance of his duty, whether or not disability has arisen, and for a reasonable time thereafter, the United States shall furnish to such employee reasonable medical, surgical, and hospital services and supplies unless he refuses to accept them. Such services and supplies shall be furnished by United States medical officers and hospitals, but where this is not practicable shall be furnished by private physicians and hospitals designated or approved by the commission and paid for from the employees' compensation fund. If necessary for the securing of proper medical, surgical, and hospital treatment, the employee, in the discretion of the commission, may be furnished transportation at the expense of the employees' compensation fund.

It will be noted that treatment is to be obtained from United States hospitals and dispensaries where practicable. Where there is no United States hospital or dispensary, or where the distance to them is so great, or where the nature of the injury or other conditions are such that it is impracticable to secure treatment from them, then treatment is to be secured from one of the designated physicians in the locality.

As practically all injuries subject to treatment under the compensation act are surgical in nature, the physicians designated are, in most instances, specialists in surgery. In making these designations, the commission, in so far as possible, has selected well-trained, experienced surgeons with good reputations.

When an injured employee is sent to a United States hospital or dispensary, or to a designated physician for treatment, he should be given by his official superior a request for treatment made out on the commission's form (CA–16) entitled "Request for Treatment," or the request may be made in the form of a letter giving all the information called for by the commission's form. This request should be dated and signed by the official superior in his official capacity and all the information called for by the form should be given. This "Request for Treatment" will be the United States medical officer's or the designated physician's authority for treating the case as a beneficiary of the compensation act. Without this request the United States medical officer or designated physician has no authority to treat the case, for he will have no means of knowing whether the case is entitled to treatment at the expense of the Government.

In localities where there are neither United States hospitals nor dispensaries, nor designated physicians, the injured employee should secure treatment from any competent, well-trained physician available, as provided in paragraphs 102–104 of the commission's regulations, edition of 1919.

Attention is particularly invited to the fact that employees are entitled to medical treatment under the compensation act only for injuries sustained while in the performance of duty. Illnesses not due directly to the nature or condition of the employee's work and injuries not sustained while in the performance of duty do not entitle the employee to treatment under the act.

If there is doubt as to whether the disability of an employee is due to injury sustained in the performance of duty, the official superior should send the employee to a United States medical officer with a "Request for Treatment" on the commission's form CA–17. If there is no United States medical officer available, the employee should be sent to a physician designated by the commission under the provisions of section 9 of the compensation act, with a request on form CA–17, as provided in paragraphs 31, 83, and 84 of the commission's regulations. The official superior should immediately report the case to the commission, explaining the circumstances and his reasons for doubt. In most cases the telegraph should be used for this purpose, preferably using night letter. These telegrams may be sent to the commission collect. The United States medical officer or designated physician to which the employee is sent for treatment will in many instances be able to determine for the official superior whether the nature of the disability with which the employee is affected is such that it could have been caused by the nature or condition of work, and whether under the circumstances described the injury is one which could be considered to have been sustained in the performance of duty.

HOSPITALS AND PHYSICIANS AVAILABLE TO EMPLOYEES OF UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT INJURED IN THE PERFORMANCE OF DUTY

IMPORTANT

The sources from which an injured employee may obtain treatment for his injury under the provisions of the employees' compensation act at the expense of the Government are given in section 9 of the act, reading as follows:

That immediately after an injury sustained by an employee while in the performance of his duty, whether or not disability has arisen, and for a reasonable time thereafter, the United States shall furnish to such employee reasonable medical, surgical, and hospital services and supplies unless he refuses to accept them. Such services and supplies shall be furnished by the United States medical officers and hospitals, but where this is not practicable shall be furnished by private physicians and hospitals designated or approved by the commission and paid for from the employees' compensation fund. If necessary for the securing of proper medical, surgical, and hospital treatment, the employee, in the discretion of the commission, may be furnished transportation at the expense of the employees' compensation fund.

It will be noted that treatment at United States hospitals and dispensaries is mandatory, where practicable. Where there is no United States hospital or dispensary, or where the distance to them is so great, or where the nature of the injury or other conditions are such that it is impracticable to secure treatment from them, then treatment is to be secured from one of the designated physicians in the locality. An explanation of such procedure must immediately be forwarded to the commission, but mere convenience or the personal preference of the injured employee will not be considered sufficient explanation.

As practically all injuries subject to treatment under the compensation act are surgical in nature, the physicians designated are, in most instances, specialists in surgery. In making these designations, the commission, in so far as possible, has selected well-trained, experienced surgeons with good reputations.

When an injured employee is sent to an United States hospital or dispensary, or to a designated physician for treatment, he should be given by his official superior a request for treatment made out on the commission's form (CA–16) entitled "Request for Treatment," or the request may be made in the form of a letter giving all the information called for by the commission's form. This request should be dated and signed by the official superior in his official capacity and all the information called for by the form should be given. This "Request for Treatment" will be the United States medical officer's or the designated physician's authority for treating the case as a beneficiary of the compensation act. Without this request the United States medical officer or designated physician has no authority to treat the case, for he will have no means of knowing whether the case is entitled to treatment at the expense of the Government.

In localities where there are neither United States hospitals nor dispensaries, nor designated physicians, the injured employee should secure treatment from any competent, well-trained physician available, as provided in paragraphs 102–104 of the commission's regulations, edition of 1919.

Attention is particularly invited to the fact that employees are entitled to medical treatment under the compensation act only for injuries sustained while in the performance of duty. Illnesses not due directly to the nature or condition of the employee's work and injuries not sustained while in the performance of duty do not entitle the employee to treatment under the act.

If there is doubt as to whether the disability of an employee is due to injury sustained in the performance of duty, the official superior should send the employee to a United States medical officer with a "Request for Treatment" on the commission's form CA–17. If there is no United States medical officer available, the employee should be sent to a physician designated by the commission under the provisions of section 9 of the compensation act, with a request on form CA–17, as provided in paragraphs 31, 83, and 84 of the commission's regulations. The official superior should immediately report the case to the commission, explaining the circumstances and his reasons for doubt. In most cases the telegraph should be used for this purpose, preferably using night letter. These telegrams may be sent to the commission collect. The United States medical officer or designated physician to which the employee is sent for treatment will in many instances be able to determine for the official superior whether the nature of the disability with which the employee is affected is such that it could have been caused by the nature or condition of work, and whether under the circumstances described the injury is one which could be considered to have been sustained in the performance of duty.

HOSPITALS AND PHYSICIANS AVAILABLE TO EMPLOYEES OF UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT INJURED IN THE PERFORMANCE OF DUTY

INSTRUCTIONS—IMPORTANT

The sources from which an injured employee may obtain treatment for his injury under the provisions of the employees' compensation act at the expense of the Government are given in section 9 of the act, reading as follows:

SEC. 9 (as amended by act of June 26, 1926). That for any injury sustained by an employee while in the performance of duty, whether or not disability has arisen, the United States shall furnish to the employee all services, appliances, and supplies prescribed or recommended by duly qualified physicians which, in the opinion of the commission, are likely to cure or to give relief or to reduce the degree or the period of disability or to aid in lessening the amount of the monthly compensation. Such services, appliances, and supplies shall be furnished by or upon the order of United States medical officers and hospitals, but where this is not practicable they shall be furnished by or upon the order of private physicians and hospitals designated or approved by the commission. For the securing of such services, appliances, and supplies the employee may be furnished transportation and may be paid all expenses incident to the securing of such services, appliances, and supplies which, in the opinion of the commission, are necessary and reasonable. All such expenses when authorized or approved by the commission shall be paid from the employees' compensation fund.

It will be noted that treatment at United States hospitals and dispensaries is mandatory where practicable. Where there is no United States hospital or dispensary, then treatment is to be secured from one of the designated physicians in the locality. Mere convenience or personal preference of the injured employee will not be considered sufficient explanation for the selection of private physicians or for designated physicians in those localities where Government hospitals and dispensaries are available.

It is desired to emphasize the character of the services available at the United States marine hospitals. Both the hospital and dispensary services include every medical facility which can be utilized with advantage in each case. Specialists are always available whenever indicated, and a full staff of ophthalmologists, orthopedic surgeons, and neuropsychiatrists, with every facility for examination and diagnosis, are included on each hospital staff.

As practically all injuries subject to treatment under the compensation act are surgical in nature, the physicians designated are, in most instances, specialists in surgery. In making these designations the commission, in so far as possible, has selected well-trained, experienced surgeons with good reputations.

When an injured employee is sent to a United States hospital or dispensary or to a designated physician for treatment he should be given by his official superior a request for treatment made out on the commission's form (CA–16) entitled "Request for Treatment," or the request may be made in the form of a letter giving all the information called for by the commission's form. This request should be dated and signed by the official superior in his official capacity, and all the information called for by the form should be given. This "Request for Treatment" will be the United States medical officer's or the designated physician's authority for treating the case as a beneficiary of the compensation act. Without this request the United States medical officer or designated physician has no authority to treat the case, for he will have no means of knowing whether the case is entitled to treatment at the expense of the Government.

In localities where there are neither United States hospitals nor dispensaries nor designated physicians the injured employee should secure treatment from any competent, well-trained physician available, as provided in paragraphs 102–104 of the commission's regulations, edition of 1919.

Attention is particularly invited to the fact that employees are entitled to medical treatment under the compensation act only for injuries sustained while in the performance of duty and occupational diseases—i. e., those showing direct causal relationship to the nature and conditions of employees' work. Illness not due directly to the nature or condition of the employee's work and injuries not sustained while in the performance of duty do not entitle the employee to treatment under the act.

It should be clearly understood that the law as construed heretofore and as now amended does not permit the payment of money compensation or the furnishing of medical care for any disease unless the result of an accident or unless its direct causal relationship to the employment is shown. The mere fact that disease develops after the employee enters Government service can not be accepted as sufficient basis for an award of compensation. The common diseases, such as colds, pneumonia, tuberculosis, typhoid fever, rheumatism, and the like, which may be and usually are due to causes entirely outside the employment, can very rarely and only under most unusual conditions be the basis of an award under the compensation law.

If there is doubt as to whether the disability of an employee is due to injury sustained in the performance of duty, the official superior should send the employee to a United States medical officer with a "Request for Treatment" on the commission's Form CA–17. If there is no United States medical officer available, the employee should be sent to a physician designated by the commission, with a request on Form CA–17, as provided in paragraphs 31, 83, and 84 of the commission's regulations. The official superior should immediately report the case to the commission, explaining the circumstances and his reasons for doubt. In most cases the telegraph should be used for this purpose, preferably using night letter. These telegrams may be sent to the commission collect. The United States medical officer or designated physician to whom the employee is sent for treatment will in many instances be able to determine for the official superior whether the nature of the disability with which the employee is affected is such that it could have been caused by the nature or condition of work and whether under the circumstances described the injury is one which could be considered to have been sustained in the performance of duty.

HOSPITALS AND PHYSICIANS AVAILABLE TO EMPLOYEES OF UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT INJURED IN THE PERFORMANCE OF DUTY

INSTRUCTIONS—IMPORTANT

The sources from which an injured employee may obtain treatment for his injury under the provisions of the employees' compensation act at the expense of the Government are given in section 9 of the act, reading as follows:

SEC. 9 (as amended by act of June 26, 1926). That for any injury sustained by an employee while in the performance of duty, whether or not disability has arisen, the United States shall furnish to the employee all services, appliances, and supplies prescribed or recommended by duly qualified physicians which, in the opinion of the commission, are likely to cure or to give relief or to reduce the degree or the period of disability or to aid in lessening the amount of the monthly compensation. Such services, appliances, and supplies shall be furnished by or upon the order of United States medical officers and hospitals, but where this is not practicable they shall be furnished by or upon the order of private physicians and hospitals designated or approved by the commission. For the securing of such services, appliances, and supplies the employee may be furnished transportation and may be paid all expenses incident to the securing of such services, appliances, and supplies which, in the opinion of the commission, are necessary and reasonable. All such expenses when authorized or approved by the commission shall be paid from the employees' compensation fund.

It will be noted that treatment at United States hospitals and dispensaries is mandatory where practicable. Where there is no United States hospital or dispensary, then treatment is to be secured from one of the designated physicians in the locality. Mere convenience or personal preference of the injured employee will not be considered sufficient explanation for the selection of private physicians or for designated physicians in those localities where Government hospitals and dispensaries are available.

It is desired to emphasize the character of the services available at the United States Marine Hospitals. Both the hospital and dispensary services include every medical facility which can be utilized with advantage in each case. Specialists are always available whenever indicated, and a full staff of ophthalmologists, orthopedic surgeons, and neuropsychiatrists, with every facility for examination and diagnosis, are included on each hospital staff.

As the great majority of injuries subject to treatment under the compensation act are surgical in nature, the physicians designated are, in most instances, specialists in surgery. In making these designations the commission, in so far as possible, has selected well-trained, experienced surgeons with good reputations.

When an injured employee is sent to a Marine Hospital or Public Health Service dispensary or to a designated physician for treatment, his official superior should give him a request for treatment made out on the commission's form (CA–16) entitled "Request for Treatment," or a letter giving all the information called for by the commission's form. This request should be dated and signed by the official superior in his official capacity, and all the information called for by the form should be given. This "Request for Treatment" will be the United States medical officer's or the designated physician's authority for treating the case as a beneficiary of the compensation act. Without this request the United States medical officer or designated physician has no authority to treat the case, for he will have no means of knowing whether the case is entitled to treatment at the expense of the Government.

In localities where there are neither Marine Hospitals nor Public Health Service dispensaries nor designated physicians the injured employee should secure treatment from any competent, well-trained physician available, as provided in paragraphs 58–64 of the commission's regulations, revised edition of 1929.

Attention is particularly invited to the fact that employees are entitled to medical treatment under the compensation act only for injuries sustained while in the performance of duty and occupational diseases—i. e., those showing direct causal relationship to the nature and conditions of employees' work. Illness not due directly to the nature or condition of the employee's work and injuries not sustained while in the performance of duty do not entitle the employee to treatment under the act.

The mere fact that disease develops while the employee is in Government service can not be accepted as sufficient basis for an award of compensation. The common diseases, such as colds, pneumonia, tuberculosis, typhoid fever, rheumatism, varicose veins, flat feet, and the like, which may be and usually are due to causes entirely outside the employment, can very rarely and only under most unusual conditions be the basis of an award under the compensation law.

If there is doubt as to whether the disability of an employee is due to injury sustained in the performance of duty, the official superior should send the employee to a United States medical officer with a "Request for Treatment" on the commission's Form CA–17. If there is no United States medical officer available, the employee should be sent to a physician designated by the commission, with a request on Form CA–17, as provided in paragraph 88 of the commission's regulation. The official superior should immediately report the case to the commission, explaining the circumstances and his reasons for doubt. In most cases the telegraph should be used for this purpose, preferably using night letter. These telegrams may be sent to the commission collect. The United States medical officer or designated physician to whom the employee is sent for treatment will in many instances be able to determine for the official superior whether the nature of the disability with which the employee is affected is such that it could have been caused by the nature or condition of work and whether under the circumstances described the injury is one which could be considered to have been sustained in the performance of duty.

HOSPITALS AND PHYSICIANS AVAILABLE TO EMPLOYEES OF UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT INJURED IN THE PERFORMANCE OF DUTY

INSTRUCTIONS—IMPORTANT

The sources from which an injured employee may obtain treatment for his injury under the provisions of the employees' compensation act at the expense of the Government are given in section 9 of the act, reading as follows:

SEC. 9 (as amended by act of June 26, 1926). That for any injury sustained by an employee while in the performance of duty, whether or not disability has arisen, the United States shall furnish to the employee all services, appliances, and supplies prescribed or recommended by duly qualified physicians which, in the opinion of the commission, are likely to cure or to give relief or to reduce the degree or the period of disability or to aid in lessening the amount of the monthly compensation. Such services, appliances, and supplies shall be furnished by or upon the order of United States medical officers and hospitals, but where this is not practicable they shall be furnished by or upon the order of private physicians and hospitals designated or approved by the commission. For the securing of such services, appliances, and supplies the employee may be furnished transportation and may be paid all expenses incident to the securing of such services, appliances, and supplies which, in the opinion of the commission, are necessary and reasonable. All such expenses when authorized or approved by the commission shall be paid from the employees' compensation fund.

It will be noted that treatment at United States hospitals and dispensaries is mandatory where practicable. Where there is no United States hospital or dispensary, then treatment is to be secured from one of the designated physicians in the locality. Mere convenience or personal preference of the injured employee will not be considered sufficient explanation for the selection of private physicians or for designated physicians in those localities where Government hospitals and dispensaries are available.

It is desired to emphasize the character of the services available at the United States marine hospitals. Both the hospital and dispensary services include every medical facility which can be utilized with advantage in each case. Specialists are always available whenever indicated, and a full staff of ophthalmologists, orthopedic surgeons, and neuropsychiatrists, with every facility for examination and diagnosis, are included on each hospital staff.

As the great majority of injuries subject to treatment under the compensation act are surgical in nature, the physicians designated are, in most instances, specialists in surgery. In making these designations the commission, in so far as possible, has selected well-trained, experienced surgeons with good reputations.

When an injured employee is sent to a marine hospital or Public Health Service dispensary or to a designated physician for treatment, his official superior should give him a request for treatment made out on the commission's form (CA–16) entitled "Request for Treatment," or a letter giving all the information called for by the commission's form. This request should be dated and signed by the official superior in his official capacity, and all the information called for by the form should be given. This "Request for Treatment" will be the United States medical officer's or the designated physician's authority for treating the case as a beneficiary of the compensation act. Without this request the United States medical officer or designated physician has no authority to treat the case, for he will have no means of knowing whether the case is entitled to treatment at the expense of the Government.

In localities where there are neither marine hospitals nor Public Health Service dispensaries nor designated physicians the injured employee should secure treatment from any competent, well-trained physician available, as provided in paragraphs 58–64 of the commission's regulations, revised edition of 1929.

Attention is particularly invited to the fact that employees are entitled to medical treatment under the compensation act only for injuries sustained while in the performance of duty and occupational diseases—i. e., those showing direct causal relationship to the nature and conditions of employee's work. Illness not due directly to the nature or condition of the employee's work and injuries not sustained while in the performance of duty do not entitle the employee to treatment under the act.

The mere fact that disease develops while the employee is in Government service can not be accepted as sufficient basis for an award of compensation. The common diseases, such as colds, pneumonia, tuberculosis, typhoid fever, rheumatism, varicose veins, flat feet, and the like, which may be and usually are due to causes entirely outside the employment, can very rarely and only under most unusual conditions be the basis of an award under the compensation law.

If there is doubt as to whether the disability of an employee is due to injury sustained in the performance of duty, the official superior should send the employee to a United States medical officer with a "Request for Treatment" on the commission's Form CA–17.

If there is no United States medical officer available, the employee should be sent to a physician designated by the commission, with a request on Form CA–17, as provided in paragraph 88 of the commission's regulation. The official superior should immediately report the case to the commission, explaining the circumstances and his reasons for doubt. In most cases the telegraph should be used for this purpose, preferably using night letter. These telegrams may be sent to the commission collect. The United States medical officer or designated physician to whom the employee is sent for treatment will in many instances be able to determine for the official superior whether the nature of the disability with which the employee is affected is such that it could have been caused by the nature or condition of work and whether under the circumstances described the injury is one which could be considered to have been sustained in the performance of duty.

HOSPITALS AND PHYSICIANS AVAILABLE TO EMPLOYEES OF UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT INJURED IN THE PERFORMANCE OF DUTY

INSTRUCTIONS—IMPORTANT

The sources from which an injured employee may obtain treatment for his injury under the provisions of the Employees' Compensation Act at the expense of the Government are given in section 9 of the act, reading as follows:

SEC. 9 (as amended by act of June 26, 1926). That for any injury sustained by an employee while in the performance of duty, whether or not disability has arisen, the United States shall furnish to the employee all services, appliances, and supplies prescribed or recommended by duly qualified physicians which, in the opinion of the Commission, are likely to cure or to give relief or to reduce the degree or the period of disability or to aid in lessening the amount of the monthly compensation. Such services, appliances, and supplies shall be furnished by or upon the order of United States medical officers and hospitals, but where this is not practicable they shall be furnished by or upon the order of private physicians and hospitals designated or approved by the Commission. For the securing of such services, appliances, and supplies the employee may be furnished transportation, and may be paid all expenses incident to the securing of such services, appliances, and supplies which, in the opinion of the Commission, are necessary and reasonable. All such expenses when authorized or approved by the Commission shall be paid from the employees' compensation fund.

It will be noted that treatment at United States hospitals and dispensaries is mandatory where practicable. Where there is no United States hospital or dispensary, then treatment is to be secured from one of the designated physicians in the locality. Mere convenience or personal preference of the injured employee will not be considered sufficient explanation for the selection of private physicians or for designated physicians in those localities where Government hospitals and dispensaries are available.

It is desired to emphasize the character of the services available at the United States marine hospitals. Both the hospital and dispensary services include every medical facility which can be utilized with advantage in each case. Specialists are always available whenever indicated, and a full staff of ophthalmologists, orthopedic surgeons, and neuropsychiatrists, with every facility for examination and diagnosis, are included on each hospital staff.

As the great majority of injuries subject to treatment under the Compensation Act are surgical in nature, the physicians designated are, in most instances, specialists in surgery. In making these designations the Commission, insofar as possible, has selected well-trained, experienced surgeons with good reputations.

When an injured employee is sent to a marine hospital or Public Health Service dispensary or to a designated physician for treatment, his official superior should give him a request for treatment made out on the Commission's form (CA–16) entitled "Request for Treatment", or a letter giving all the information called for by the Commission's form. This request should be dated and signed by the official superior in his official capacity, and all the information called for by the form should be given. This "Request for Treatment" will be the United States medical officer's or the designated physician's authority for treating the case as a beneficiary of the Compensation Act. Without this request the United States medical officer or designated physician has no authority to treat the case, for he will have no means of knowing whether the case is entitled to treatment at the expense of the Government.

In localities where there are neither marine hospitals nor Public Health Service dispensaries nor designated physicians, the injured employee should secure treatment from any competent, well-trained physician available, as provided in paragraphs 58–64 of the Commission's regulations, revised edition of 1929.

Attention is particularly invited to the fact that employees are entitled to medical treatment under the Compensation Act only for injuries sustained while in the performance of duty and occupational diseases—i.e., those showing direct causal relationship to the nature and conditions of employee's work. Illness not due directly to the nature or condition of the employee's work and injuries not sustained while in the performance of duty do not entitle the employee to treatment under the act.

The mere fact that disease develops while the employee is in Government service cannot be accepted as sufficient basis for an award of compensation. The common diseases, such as colds, pneumonia, tuberculosis, typhoid fever, rheumatism, varicose veins, flat feet, and the like, which may be and usually are due to causes entirely outside the employment, can very rarely and only under most unusual conditions be the basis of an award under the compensation law.

If there is doubt as to whether the disability of an employee is due to injury sustained in the performance of duty, the official superior should send the employee to a United States medical officer with a "Request for treatment" on the Commission's form CA–17. If there is no United States medical officer available, the employee should be sent to a physician designated by the Commission, with a request on form CA–17, as provided in paragraph 88 of the Commission's regulations. The official superior should immediately report the case to the Commission, explaining the circumstances and his reasons for doubt. In most cases the telegraph should be used for this purpose, preferably using night letter. These telegrams may be sent to the Commission collect. The United States medical officer or designated physician to whom the employee is sent for treatment will in many instances be able to determine for the official superior whether the nature of the disability with which the employee is affected is such that it could have been caused by the nature or condition of work and whether under the circumstances described the injury is one which could be considered to have been sustained in the performance of duty.

INSTRUCTIONS—IMPORTANT

The sources from which an injured employee may obtain treatment for his injury under the provisions of the Employees' Compensation Act at the expense of the Government are given in section 9 of the act, reading as follows:

SEC. 9 (as amended by act of June 26, 1926). That for any injury sustained by an employee while in the performance of duty, whether or not disability has arisen, the United States shall furnish to the employee all services, appliances, and supplies prescribed or recommended by duly qualified physicians which, in the opinion of the Commission, are likely to cure or to give relief or to reduce the degree or the period of disability or to aid in lessening the amount of the monthly compensation. Such services, appliances, and supplies shall be furnished by or upon the order of United States medical officers and hospitals, but where this is not practicable they shall be furnished by or upon the order of private physicians and hospitals designated or approved by the Commission. For the securing of such services, appliances, and supplies the employee may be furnished transportation, and may be paid all expenses incident to the securing of such services, appliances, and supplies which, in the opinion of the Commission, are necessary and reasonable. All such expenses when authorized or approved by the Commission shall be paid from the employees' compensation fund.

It will be noted that treatment at United States hospitals and dispensaries is mandatory where practicable. Where there is no United States hospital or dispensary, then treatment is to be secured from one of the designated physicians in the locality. Mere convenience or personal preference of the injured employee will not be considered sufficient explanation for the selection of private physicians or for designated physicians in those localities where Government hospitals and dispensaries are available.

It is desired to emphasize the character of the services available at the United States marine hospitals. Both the hospital and dispensary services include every medical facility which can be utilized with advantage in each case. Specialists are always available whenever indicated, and a full staff of ophthalmologists, orthopedic surgeons, and neuropsychiatrists, with every facility for examination and diagnosis, are included on each hospital staff.

As the great majority of injuries subject to treatment under the Compensation Act are surgical in nature, the physicians designated are, in most instances, specialists in surgery. In making these designations the Commission, insofar as possible, has selected well-trained, experienced surgeons with good reputations.

When an injured employee is sent to a marine hospital or Public Health Service dispensary or to a designated physician for treatment, his official superior should give him a request for treatment made out on the Commission's form (CA–16) entitled "Request for Treatment", or a letter giving all the information called for by the Commission's form. This request should be dated and signed by the official superior in his official capacity, and all the information called for by the form should be given. This "Request for Treatment" will be the United States medical officer's or the designated physician's authority for treating the case as a beneficiary of the Compensation Act. Without this request the United States medical officer or designated physician has no authority to treat the case, for he will have no means of knowing whether the case is entitled to treatment at the expense of the Government.

In localities where there are neither marine hospitals nor Public Health Service dispensaries nor designated physicians, the injured employee should secure treatment from any competent, well-trained physician available, as provided in paragraphs 58–64 of the Commission's regulations, revised edition of 1929.

Attention is particularly invited to the fact that employees are entitled to medical treatment under the Compensation Act only for injuries sustained while in the performance of duty and occupational diseases—i. e., those showing direct causal relationship to the nature and conditions of employee's work. Illness not due directly to the nature or condition of the employee's work and injuries not sustained while in the performance of duty do not entitle the employee to treatment under the act.

The mere fact that disease develops while the employee is in Government service cannot be accepted as sufficient basis for an award of compensation. The common diseases, such as colds, pneumonia, tuberculosis, typhoid fever, rheumatism, varicose veins, flat feet, and the like, which may be and usually are due to causes entirely outside the employment, can very rarely and only under most unusual conditions be the basis of an award under the compensation law.

If there is doubt as to whether the disability of an employee is due to injury sustained in the performance of duty, the official superior should send the employee to a United States medical officer with a "Request for Treatment" on the Commission's form CA–17. If there is no United States medical officer available, the employee should be sent to a physician designated by the Commission, with a request on form CA–17, as provided in paragraph 88 of the Commission's regulations. The official superior should immediately report the case to the Commission, explaining the circumstances and his reasons for doubt. In most cases the telegraph should be used for this purpose, preferably using night letter. These telegrams may be sent to the Commission collect. The United States medical officer or designated physician to whom the employee is sent for treatment will in many instances be able to determine for the official superior whether the nature of the disability with which the employee is affected is such that it could have been caused by the nature or condition of work and whether under the circumstances described the injury is one which could be considered to have been sustained in the performance of duty.

HOSPITALS AND PHYSICIANS AVAILABLE TO EMPLOYEES OF UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT INJURED IN THE PERFORMANCE OF DUTY

INSTRUCTIONS—IMPORTANT

The sources from which an injured employee may obtain treatment for his injury under the provisions of the Employees' Compensation Act at the expense of the Government are given in section 9 of the act, reading as follows:

SEC. 9 (as amended by act of June 26, 1926). That for any injury sustained by an employee while in the performance of duty, whether or not disability has arisen, the United States shall furnish to the employee all services, appliances, and supplies prescribed or recommended by duly qualified physicians which, in the opinion of the Commission, are likely to cure or to give relief or to reduce the degree or the period of disability or to aid in lessening the amount of the monthly compensation. Such services, appliances, and supplies shall be furnished by or upon the order of United States medical officers and hospitals, but where this is not practicable they shall be furnished by or upon the order of private physicians and hospitals designated or approved by the Commission. For the securing of such services, appliances, and supplies the employee may be furnished transportation, and may be paid all expenses incident to the securing of such services, appliances, and supplies which, in the opinion of the Commission, are necessary and reasonable. All such expenses when authorized or approved by the Commission shall be paid from the employee's compensation fund.

It will be noted that treatment at United States hospitals and dispensaries is mandatory where practicable. Where there is no United States hospital or dispensary, then treatment is to be secured from one of the designated physicians in the locality. Mere convenience or personal preference of the injured employee will not be considered sufficient explanation for the selection of private physicians or for designated physicians in those localities where Government hospitals and dispensaries are available.

It is desired to emphasize the character of the services available at the United States marine hospitals. Both the hospital and dispensary services include every medical facility which can be utilized with advantage in each case. Specialists are always available whenever indicated, and a full staff of ophthalmologists, orthopedic surgeons, and neuropsychiatrists, with every facility for examination and diagnosis, are included on each hospital staff.

As the great majority of injuries subject to treatment under the Compensation Act are surgical in nature, the physicians designated are, in most instances, specialists in surgery. In making these designations the Commission, insofar as possible, has selected well-trained, experienced surgeons with good reputations.

When an injured employee is sent to a marine hospital or Public Health Service dispensary or to a designated physician for treatment, his official superior should give him a request for treatment made out on the Commission's form (CA–16) entitled "Request for Treatment", or a letter giving all the information called for by the Commission's form. This request should be dated and signed by the official superior in his official capacity, and all the information called for by the form should be given. This "Request for Treatment" will be the United States medical officer's or the designated physician's authority for treating the case as a beneficiary of the Compensation Act. Without this request the United States medical officer or designated physician has no authority to treat the case, for he will have no means of knowing whether the case is entitled to treatment at the expense of the Government.

In localities where there are neither marine hospitals nor Public Health Service dispensaries nor designated physicians, the injured employee should secure treatment from any competent, well-trained physician available, as provided in Section 2.1 to Section 2.7, inclusive, of the Commission's Regulations as amended to June 30, 1939.

Attention is particularly invited to the fact that employees are entitled to medical treatment under the Compensation Act only for injuries sustained while in the performance of duty and occupational diseases—i. e., those showing direct causal relationship to the nature and conditions of employee's work. Illness not due directly to the nature or condition of the employee's work and injuries not sustained while in the performance of duty do not entitle the employee to treatment under the act.

The mere fact that disease develops while the employee is in Government service cannot be accepted as sufficient basis for an award of compensation. The common diseases, such as colds, pneumonia, heart disease, tuberculosis, typhoid fever, rheumatism, varicose veins, flat feet, and the like, which may be and usually are due to causes entirely outside the employment, can very rarely and only under most unusual conditions be the basis of an award under the compensation law.

If there is doubt as to whether the disability of an employee is due to injury sustained in the performance of duty, the official superior should send the employee to a United States medical officer with a "Request for Treatment" on the Commission's form CA–17.

If there is no United States medical officer available, the employee should be sent to a physician designated by the Commission, with a request on form CA–17, as provided in section 2.5 of the Commission's regulations. The official superior should immediately report the case to the Commission, explaining the circumstances and his reasons for doubt. In most cases the telegraph should be used for this purpose, preferably using night letter. These telegrams may be sent to the Commission collect. The United States medical officer or designated physician to whom the employee is sent for treatment will in many instances be able to determine for the official superior whether the nature of the disability with which the employee is affected is such that it could have been caused by the nature or condition of work and whether under the circumstances described the injury is one which could be considered to have been sustained in the performance of duty.

HOSPITALS AND PHYSICIANS AVAILABLE TO EMPLOYEES OF UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT INJURED IN THE PERFORMANCE OF DUTY

INSTRUCTIONS—IMPORTANT

The sources from which an injured employee may obtain treatment for his injury under the provisions of the Employees' Compensation Act at the expense of the Government are given in section 9 of the act, reading as follows:

SEC. 9 (as amended by act of June 26, 1926). That for any injury sustained by an employee while in the performance of duty, whether or not disability has arisen, the United States shall furnish to the employee all services, appliances, and supplies prescribed or recommended by duly qualified physicians which, in the opinion of the Commission, are likely to cure or to give relief or to reduce the degree or the period of disability or to aid in lessening the amount of the monthly compensation. Such services, appliances, and supplies shall be furnished by or upon the order of United States medical officers and hospitals, but where this is not practicable they shall be furnished by or upon the order of private physicians and hospitals designated or approved by the Commission. For the securing of such services, appliances, and supplies the employee may be furnished transportation, and may be paid all expenses incident to the securing of such services, appliances, and supplies which, in the opinion of the Commission, are necessary and reasonable. All such expenses when authorized or approved by the Commission shall be paid from the employees' compensation fund.

It will be noted that treatment at United States hospitals and dispensaries is mandatory where practicable. Where there is no United States hospital or dispensary, then treatment is to be secured from one of the designated physicians in the locality. Mere convenience or personal preference of the injured employee will not be considered sufficient explanation for the selection of private physicians or for designated physicians in those localities where Government hospitals and dispensaries are available.

It is desired to emphasize the character of the services available at the United States marine hospitals. Both the hospital and dispensary services include every medical facility which can be utilized with advantage in each case. Specialists are always available whenever indicted, and a full staff of ophthalmologists, orthopedic surgeons, and neuropsychiatrists, with every facility for examination and diagnosis, are included on each hospital staff.

As the great majority of injuries subject to treatment under the Compensation Act are surgical in nature, the physicians designated are, in most instances, specialists in surgery. In making these designations the Commission, insofar as possible, has selected well-trained, experienced surgeons with good reputations.

When an injured employee is sent to a marine hospital or Public Health Service dispensary or to a designated physician for treatment, his official superior should give him a request for treatment made out on the Commission's form (CA–16) entitled "Request for Treatment," or a letter giving all the information called for by the Commission's form. This request should be dated and signed by the official superior in his official capacity, and all the information called for by the form should be given. This "Request for Treatment" will be the United States medical officer's or the designated physician's authority for treating the case as a beneficiary of the Compensation Act. Without this request the United States medical officer or designated physician has no authority to treat the case, for he will have no means of knowing whether the case is entitled to treatment at the expense of the Government.

In localities where there are neither marine hospitals nor Public Health Service dispensaries nor designated physicians, the injured employee should secure treatment from any competent, well-trained physician available, as provided in Section 2.1 to Section 2.7, inclusive, of the Commission's Regulations as amended to June 30, 1939.

Attention is particularly invited to the fact that employees are entitled to medical treatment under the Compensation Act only for injuries sustained while in the performance of duty and occupational diseases—i. e., those showing direct causal relationship to the nature and conditions of employee's work. Illness not due directly to the nature or condition of the employee's work and injuries not sustained while in the performance of duty do not entitle the employee to treatment under the act.

The mere fact that disease develops while the employee is in Government service cannot be accepted as sufficient basis for an award of compensation. The common diseases, such as colds, pneumonia, heart disease, tuberculosis, typhoid fever, rheumatism, varicose veins, flat feet, and the like, which may be and usually are due to causes entirely outside the employment, can very rarely and only under most unusual conditions be the basis of an award under the compensation law.

If there is doubt as to whether the disability of an employee is due to injury sustained in the performance of duty, the official superior should send the employee to a United States medical officer with a "Request for Treatment" on the Commission's form CA–17.

If there is no United States medical officer available, the employee should be sent to a physician designated by the Commission, with a request on form CA–17, as provided in Section 2.5 of the Commission's regulations. The official superior should immediately report the case to the Commission, explaining the circumstances and his reasons for doubt. In most cases the telegraph should be used for this purpose, preferably using night letter. These telegrams may be sent to the Commission collect. The United States medical officer or designated physician to whom the employee is sent for treatment will in many instances be able to determine for the official superior whether the nature of the disability with which the employee is affected is such that it could have been caused by the nature or condition of work and whether under the circumstances described the injury is one which could be considered to have been sustained in the performance of duty.

HOSPITALS AND PHYSICIANS AVAILABLE TO EMPLOYEES OF UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT INJURED IN THE PERFORMANCE OF DUTY

INSTRUCTIONS—IMPORTANT

The sources from which an injured employee may obtain treatment for his injury under the provisions of the Employees' Compensation Act at the expense of the Government are given in section 9 of the act, reading as follows:

SEC. 9 (as amended by act of June 26, 1926). That for any injury sustained by an employee while in the performance of duty, whether or not disability has arisen, the United States shall furnish to the employee all services, appliances, and supplies prescribed or recommended by duly qualified physicians which, in the opinion of the Commission, are likely to cure or to give relief or reduce the degree or the period of disability or to aid in lessening the amount of the monthly compensation. Such services, appliances, and supplies shall be furnished by or upon the order of United States medical officers and hospitals, but where this is not practicable they shall be furnished by or upon the order of private physicians and hospitals designated or approved by the Commission. For the securing of such services, appliances, and supplies the employee may be furnished transportation, and may be paid all expenses incident to the securing of such services, appliances, and supplies which, in the opinion of the Commission, are necessary and reasonable. All such expenses when authorized or approved by the Commission shall be paid from the employees' compensation fund.

It will be noted that treatment at United States hospitals and dispensaries is mandatory where practicable. Where there is no United States hospital or dispensary, then treatment is to be secured from one of the designated physicians in the locality. Mere convenience or personal preference of the injured employee will not be considered sufficient explanation for the selection of private physicians or for designated physicians in those localities where Government hospitals and dispensaries are available.

It is desired to emphasize the character of the services available at the United States marine hospitals. Both the hospital and dispensary services include every medical facility which can be utilized with advantage in each case. Specialists are always available whenever indicated, and a full staff of ophthalmologists, orthopedic surgeons and neuropsychiatrists, with every facility for examination and diagnosis, are included on each hospital staff.

As the great majority of injuries subject to treatment under the Compensation Act are surgical in nature, the physicians designated are, in most instances, specialists in surgery. In making these designations the Commission, insofar as possible, has selected well-trained, experienced surgeons with good reputations.

When an injured employee is sent to a marine hospital or Public Health Service dispensary or to a designated physician for treatment, his official superior should give him a request for treatment made out on the Commission's form (CA–16) entitled "Request for Treatment," or a letter giving all the information called for by the Commission's form. This request should be dated and signed by the official superior in his official capacity, and all the information called for by the form should be given. This "Request for Treatment" will be the United States medical officer's or the designated physician's authority for treating the case as a beneficiary of the Compensation Act. Without this request the United States medical officer or designated physician has no authority to treat the case, for he will have no means of knowing whether the case is entitled to treatment at the expense of the Government.

In localities where there are neither marine hospitals nor Public Health Service dispensaries nor designated physicians, the injured employee should secure treatment from any competent, well-trained physician available, as provided in Section 2.1 to Section 2.7, inclusive, of the Commission's Regulations as amended to June 30, 1939.

Attention is particularly invited to the fact that employees are entitled to medical treatment under the Compensation Act only for injuries sustained while in the performance of duty and occupational diseases—i. e., those showing direct causal relationship to the nature and conditions of employee's work. Illness not due directly to the nature or condition of the employee's work and injuries not sustained while in the performance of duty do not entitle the employee to treatment under the act.

The mere fact that disease develops while the employee is in Government service cannot be accepted as sufficient basis for an award of compensation. The common diseases, such as colds, pneumonia, heart disease, tuberculosis, typhoid fever, rheumatism, varicose veins, flat feet, and the like, which may be and usually are due to causes entirely outside the employment, can very rarely and only under most unusual conditions be the basis of an award under the compensation law.

If there is doubt as to whether the disability of an employee is due to injury sustained in the performance of duty, the official superior should send the employee to a United States medical officer with a "Request for Treatment" on the Commission's form CA–17. If there is no United States medical officer available, the employee should be sent to a physician designated by the Commission, with a request on form CA–17, as provided in Section 2.5 of the Commission's regulations. The official superior should immediately report the case to the Commission, explaining the circumstances and his reasons for doubt. In most cases the telegraph should be used for this purpose, preferably using night letter. These telegrams may be sent to the Commission collect. The United States medical officer or designated physician to whom the employee is sent for treatment will in many instances be able to determine for the official superior whether the nature of the disability with which the employee is affected is such that it could have been caused by the nature or condition of work and whether under the circumstances described the injury is one which could be considered to have been sustained in the performance of duty.

HOSPITALS AND PHYSICIANS AVAILABLE TO EMPLOYEES OF UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT INJURED IN THE PERFORMANCE OF DUTY

INSTRUCTIONS—IMPORTANT

The sources from which an injured employee may obtain treatment for his injury under the provisions of the Employees' Compensation Act at the expense of the Government are given in section 9 of the act, reading as follows:

SEC. 9 (as amended by act of June 26, 1926). That for any injury sustained by an employee while in the performance of duty, whether or not disability has arisen, the United States shall furnish to the employee all services, appliances, and supplies prescribed or recommended by duly qualified physicians which, in the opinion of the Commission, are likely to cure or to give relief or to reduce the degree or the period of disability or to aid in lessening the amount of the monthly compensation. Such services, appliances, and supplies shall be furnished by or upon the order of United States medical officers and hospitals, but where this is not practicable they shall be furnished by or upon the order of private physicians and hospitals designated or approved by the Commission. For the securing of such services, appliances, and supplies the employee may be furnished transportation, and may be paid all expenses incident to the securing of such services, appliances, and supplies which, in the opinion of the Commission, are necessary and reasonable. All such expenses when authorized or approved by the Commission shall be paid from the employees' compensation fund.

It will be noted that treatment at United States hospitals and dispensaries is mandatory where practicable. Where there is no United States hospital or dispensary, then treatment is to be secured from one of the designated physicians in the locality. Mere convenience or personal preference of the injured employee will not be considered sufficient explanation for the selection of private physicians or for designated physicians in those localities where Government hospitals and dispensaries are available.

It is desired to emphasize the character of the services available at the United States marine hospitals. Both the hospital and dispensary services include every medical facility which can be utilized with advantage in each case. Specialists are always available whenever indicated, and a full staff of ophthalmologists, orthopedic surgeons, and neuropsychiatrists, with every facility for examination and diagnosis, are included on each hospital staff.

As the great majority of injuries subject to treatment under the Compensation Act are surgical in nature, the physicians designated are, in most instances, specialists in surgery. In making these designations the Commission, insofar as possible, has selected well-trained, experienced surgeons with good reputations.

When an injured employee is sent to a marine hospital or Public Health Service dispensary or to a designated physician for treatment, his official superior should give him a request for treatment made out on the Commission's form (CA–16) entitled "Request for Treatment," or a letter giving all the information called for by the Commission's form. This request should be dated and signed by the official superior in his official capacity, and all the information called for by the form should be given. This "Request for Treatment" will be the United States medical officer's or the designated physician's authority for treating the case as a beneficiary of the Compensation Act. Without this request the United States medical officer or designated physician has no authority to treat the case, for he will have no means of knowing whether the case is entitled to treatment at the expense of the Government.

In localities where there are neither marine hospitals nor Public Health Service dispensaries nor designated physicians, the injured employee should secure treatment from any competent, well-trained physician available, as provided in Section 2.1 to Section 2.7, inclusive, of the Commission's Regulations as amended to June 30, 1939.

Attention is particularly invited to the fact that employees are entitled to medical treatment under the Compensation Act only for injuries sustained while in the performance of duty and occupational diseases—i. e., those showing direct causal relationship to the nature and conditions of employee's work. Illness not due directly to the nature or condition of the employee's work and injuries not sustained while in the performance of duty do not entitle the employee to treatment under the act.

The mere fact that disease develops while the employee is in Government service cannot be accepted as sufficient basis for an award of compensation. The common diseases, such as colds, pneumonia, heart disease, tuberculosis, typhoid fever, rheumatism, varicose veins, flat feet, and the like, which may be and usually are due to causes entirely outside the employment, can very rarely and only under most unusual conditions be the basis of an award under the compensation law.

If there is doubt as to whether the disability of an employee is due to injury sustained in the performance of duty, the official superior should send the employee to a United States medical officer with a "Request for Treatment" on the Commission's form CA–17. If there is no United States medical officer available, the employee should be sent to a physician designated by the Commission, with a request on form CA–17, as provided in Section 2.5 of the Commission's regulations. The official superior should immediately report the case to the Commission, explaining the circumstances and his reasons for doubt. In most cases the telegraph should be used for this purpose, preferably using night letter. These telegrams may be sent to the Commission collect. The United States medical officer or designated physician to whom the employee is sent for treatment will in many instances be able to determine for the official superior whether the nature of the disability with which the employee is affected is such that it could have been caused by the nature or condition of work and whether under the circumstances described the injury is one which could be considered to have been sustained in the performance of duty.
